PARIS CRITICAL STUDIES NEWSLETTER #2

Dijon, charming town in the heart of Burgundy

On the weekend of September 29th, we took students to the city of Dijon, known for its wine, gourmet dining options and of course, mustard! We stopped in the town of Vézelay for lunch and then spent Saturday evening in Dijon where many students tried escargot for the first time! Sunday morning we visited the Chateau of Marsannay where we strolled through sprawling vineyards. After a delicious meal of perfectly-cooked sea bream, we took the bus home to Paris, with several new bottles of wine and mustard, and our cameras full of photos!

A la FAC !

Critical Studies students are deep inside of the Fall semester, and their classes at the Université de Paris are in full swing. To give you an idea of what students are studying this semester, here's a short list of classes for Fall 2012 at the Université de Paris Diderot or Paris III ! Narrative Poetics and Theory, Revolutions in French Literature, Slavery/Memory/History, Novel-Memoires of the 18th Century, Literature and Psychoanalysis, Baroque Era Theater.

SPRING 2013 ! Critical Studies AND Francophone Studies

As of next semester, the CIEE Paris program is offering a new track, one devoted to Francophone Studies! Students with 5 semesters of college French and the desire to take all classes in French and explore the Université de Paris should consider this great opportunity! Apply now! Deadlines have been extended to November 15th.
